Activity

Skiing

We skied Ghost Trees a handful of times on the 17th. I dug a pit and just updated it on SnowPilot this morning. The only instability we found was a small (2 meters wide) pocket that broke about 15 cm down as a result of a ski cut. It was on the far skiers right shoulder of the run at a convexity.

The following day on 18th we toured out into Hayden creek basin and skied some NE facing slopes across from Ollies woods. A lot of wind loading, the depth in my test pit was over 3 meters. I had a ECTX and we skied the slope. We did not observe any avalanche activity out there.
